FIGHT AT ROCKVIEW RESULTS IN MURDER

Colored Men Came to Blows Over Domino Game

WILL PLEAD GUILTY

Floyd Mason, 24 years old, died at the Rockview penitentiary on Monday afternoon as the result of injuries received in a fight over a domino game and, as a result William Muse, 29 years old, is locked in one of the six cells in the death house at the prison, facing a charge of volentary manslaughter. The maximum penalty is 12 years.

Mason and Muse were colored prisoners. The former was serving a sentence for involuntary manslaughter, being convicted in Allegheny County. So far as could be learned he was unmarried and is survived by only one relative, a sister residing in Detroit. The prisoners made up a purse of $50 and the prison officials contributed the balance toward the expense of interring Mason's body in a special plot at Rockview this morning.

Muse is 29 years old and was serving a sentence of 4 to 4½ years for breaking and entering with intent to commit a felony, being convicted in Lawrence County. His term for this crime expired on March 13th.

The game of dominoes was played on the evening of March 8th and the quarrel was staged in the block, as the inside of the prison or night quarters for the prisoners, is known. The two men are said to have quarreled over 45 cents and came to wicked blows.

Two guards soon came upon them and separated the convicts. They were very angry, however, and one—Muse—was ordered to his bed and Mason to be taken to the hospital and kept there. Before going to the hospital, he asked for his shirt and, while the guard was getting it, Mason is alleged to have struck Muse on the arm, the latter swinging a blow to Mason's jaw that felled him.

Muse has only one arm, his right, which has developed more than ordinarily, so that he struck harder than he intended, he said, and was sorry that he hit Mason so wickedly. Mason's head struck the concrete floor and he was rendered unconscious. He remained in that condition for several days but was about again last Saturday and was thought to have recovered sufficiently to walk about the hospital. Concussion of the brain was given as the cause of his death.

Dr. W. R. Heaton, of Philipsburg, coroner of Centre County, was called on Tuesday afternoon and held an inquest. A post mortem examination held Tuesday night revealed that Mason suffered from hemorrhage of the brain.

Muse will be provided with an attorney and appear in court on habeas corpus proceedings next Tuesday. He will enter a plea of guilty, which will be in his favor in the matter of the severity of his sentence. Immediately afterward he will be taken back to Pittsburgh.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Recorder Lloyd Stover's Home Scene of Celebration.

The home of Recorder Lloyd A. Stover was the scene of a joyous event on Sunday when Mr. and Mrs. Stover observed the anniversary of 21 years of happy married life. They were married on March 16, 1903, by Rev. W. P. Shriner, then pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church in Bellefonte. Speaking of the day, Mr. Stover said, "It rained to beat the band, if that has anything to do with it." But apparently, as is frequently the case, their married life has been the opposite—happy rather than stormy.

One of the features of the anniversary was the delicious dinner served, at which with Mr. and Mrs. Stover, the children and a few invited friends surrounded the table, laden with good things, and made merry. Mr. and Mrs. Stover have nine children—Irene, Madaline, Donald, Lloyd A. Jr., Ralph, Grace, Jean, Pauline, and Eunice—all at home. His mother, Mrs. Kate Stover, was also an honored guest.

Mr. Stover, when elected to the office of Recorder, was employed by the H. P. Schaeffer hardware store. He had been employed for eight years by Mr. Schaeffer and prior to that time had been with the Potter—Hoy hardware firm for twelve years. He and his family reside in the same house in Coleville in which he started housekeeping.

A beautiful set of silverware was presented this highly esteemed couple by their children and they were recipients of best wishes from a host of friends, in which "The Republican" joins.

TRIO FROM SNOW SHOE IN SERIOUS TROUBLE

Held Without Bail in Dynamiting Affair of 1922

MUCH MYSTERY IN CASE

Three men from the Snow Shoe coal mining district are in jail in Bellefonte without bail, being held after a hearing before Justice Kline Woodring on last Friday afternoon, charged with dynamiting a house occupied by three miners and causing the death of one—William Bukosky, who left a widow and six children. The men gave their names as John Billy, John Strybila and John Bodenshock.

Their present trouble is the result of strike actions taken in the Snow Shoe district during the tense period of March, 1922. From what could be learned the trouble, at the time it was brewing, indicated that there had been scraps between the union men and miners who went to work which resulted in various attempts to handicap the industry by wrecking of property.

This particular instance, in which the men are charged with dynamiting the house occupied by three miners—William Bukosky, William Shikella and Fred Roshoff—was the first serious outbreak noted. It caused immediate action to be taken by the operators and a number of state policemen were stationed in the district, while Harry Dukenan, then Sheriff, kept in close touch with the situation. The officers could learn very little of the men responsible for the crimes, however, as they kept their actions quiet.

The house dynamited was blown to atoms. The miners were sleeping and the body of Bukosky was found among fallen timbers of the structure. His companions were not injured seriously. The explosion was heard for more than a mile and attracted much attention.

Soon after, property at Mine 13 of the Morgan coal firm, was damaged in an attempt to stop the mine and the officers had six miners taken into custody and lodged in jail here, subsequently getting salty sentences when arraigned before Judge Quigley. At the time the men were tried Judge Quigley made the following statement to the miners:

"I do not know whether you men are acquainted with the facts of a law recently enacted by the State Legislature, making it a first degree murder if persons lose their lives through train wreckers. Persons causing such wrecks where death results shall be held for first degree murder. You men were fortunate that no person was killed or met death through your actions."

At the same hearing it became apparent that State police were stationed at Snow Shoe with strict orders to maintain order at any cost. At the time, the incidents were widely published and very little further disorder was reported from Snow Shoe.

Because of the death of the miner in the house dynamited, however, that case was not dropped. Patiently the officials have worked along with it until certain recent developments furnished evidence implicating the three miners also another. The fourth man has so far been able to elude arrest.

FINED FOR PEEPING

State College Man Arraigned for Disorderly Conduct.

Clayton Krebs, of State College, was arraigned before Kline Woodring, a Bellefonte justice of the peace, on Monday afternoon on a charge of disorderly conduct. He entered a plea of guilty and was fined $10 and costs.

Krebs was taken into custody by Robert Mingle, police officer of State College borough. Complaint had been made by college students that young men had been seen peeping through the windows at the young women's dormitory as they prepared to retire. Officer Mingle suspected Krebs and his arrest followed.

George Bland Electrocuted.

George Bland, colored, 22 years old convicted in Dauphin County, was electrocuted at the death house at the Rockview penitentiary on Monday morning. He went to the chair at 7:07 and was pronounced dead at 7:14, receiving two contacts. He was accompanied to the chair by Rev. Krankey, who came to Rockview recently as chaplain. The body was not claimed and burial was made in the Rockview burial plot.

Borough Manager Seibert Insults Borough Council.

When a few weeks ago "The Republican" called to public attention the proposal before the Borough Council to purchase the Ulsh & Bashoar mill for an electric lighting plant, we emphasized that our purpose was to have determined whether or not the project would be a sound business investment for the people of Bellefonte. We properly asked that all facts and figures be submitted to the public. We pointed out that if the matter were founded upon merit it would be helped by a frank explanation as to costs and an equally candid statement showing whether such an expenditure would involve increased taxes, and, if so, how much.

The Borough Council, through its secretary, William T. Kelly, was both courteous and prompt in furnishing the desired figures. These, when shown in comparison, revealed that the cost of the electric project would exceed income by something over $58,000 in a ten years period. The absurdity of such a proposition was so apparent to Borough Council that the matter was quickly abandoned. The fact that it was abandoned would seem to speak for itself.

It never occurred to this newspaper, in asking that the electric deal be frankly explained to the people, that we might be treading upon the toes of Borough Manager James D. Seibert. When the deal blew up, however, it revealed Mr. Seibert as its very much disappointed champion. Up to this time it has not developed just who was behind Mr. Seibert. That will, no doubt, eventually come to the surface.

Mr. Seibert, seemingly enraged because of his failure to put over the electric deal, published over his signature as Borough Manager in the "Democratic Watchman" last week a statement attacking "The Republican" because we are fighting against things that mean higher taxes. He declared that in publishing the figures showing costs exceeding income to the Borough the editor of this newspaper had indulged in "spreading poison." If publishing facts is "spreading poison," we promptly plead guilty. We have no apologies to offer.

We have a word or two to say to Mr. Seibert, and we would recommend that he take the matter to heart. Inasmuch as the only facts and figures relative to the electric deal published by this newspaper were those formally submitted to the Borough Council by Secretary Kelly, Mr. Seibert's statement is an insult to the Council. He should be called to account by Council and given to understand that he is not the master but the paid servant of the people. The Borough Council has demonstrated that it is responsive to public sentiment in matters involving the people's money. Seemingly Mr. Seibert is not. By his own admissions, he favors dickering with the people's money behind closed doors; that is, keeping the facts from the people until deals are consummated and it is too late for the public to express approval or disapproval. Any man who prefers dealing in the dark to open-and-aboveboard transactions invites suspicion upon himself and his schemes.

Mr. Seibert's clumsy effort to exhibit himself as an expert in finance is too grotesque for words. If he will attend efficiently to his job as Borough Manager he will be kept too busy to have any time for promoting electric deals. The Borough Financial Statement for 1923 will be open to public inspection before long. It will be interesting to observe how ably Mr. Seibert has been managing the affairs of the Water Department, and whether he has permitted costs to exceed income in Borough affairs. Perhaps Mr. Seibert has started something that he may not be able to stop.

TOO MUCH VANDALISM

Chief of Police Dukeman Urges Severe Punishment.

The vandalism that has been evident in Bellefonte for some time is out of place. It should be stopped by all means, even if stern measures must be resorted to in the effort. On Saturday morning, it was discovered that somebody lacking good sense and the right regard for others, had smashed the glass on one side of the McGarvey sisters' photo display cabinet at the porch at the entrance to their studio in the Decker building at Spring and High streets. Two photos—one of Miss Catherine Allison and the other of Miss Mildred Wagner—were stolen. This is worse than disorderly conduct and the police have their idea in a general way as to who might be responsible for such acts.

The interior of the Montgomery dwelling, recently purchased by the Presbyterian congregation, was damaged on Saturday evening. The house has been vacant and the affair on Saturday evening indicated malicious mischief, the work of a party of youths with nothing else to do.

Chief of Police Dukeman said:-

"For instance, I noticed a young stranger cutting a bench with a big knife and I slipped into the Garman House by a back door and watched a young student through a window. He was using a knife somewhat like a butcher knife. It was as sharp as a razor. Although in such a public place, with pedestrians passing by continually, he kept cutting at the bench. It was county property that we are employed to protect. I went to the fellow and said, 'Here, what are you doing?' 'O, just cutting my initials,' he replied 'Don't you know that's public property you're destroying? Give me that knife.' He handed it to me. Then I said, 'Now, you report at the Burgess' office tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.' He showed up and was fined $5.

"On a recent Sunday, while one of the members of the Lutheran church was attending services, somebody stripped his auto of certain accessories. That's another thing that has been going on for some time. Quite likely they do not realize the real nature of their offenses and it will take more than a $5 fine to drive it home to them. I am sure the police can stop this vandalism, which is looked upon by some as just 'tomfoolery,' but the punishment must be severe enough to take hold and impress the offenders that it won't be tolerated."

Fire at Howard School.

(By Howard Correspondent.)

The Howard High School building was damaged to the extent of about $20 on Wednesday morning at 8:30 o'clock when fire from a spark from the chimney burned a large hole in the roof. Fortunately, there was no wind blowing at the time and a bucket brigade managed to keep the flames under control until the firemen got a good stream of water on the blaze, soon extinguishing it.

MAJOR ADAMS' ADDRESS

Told of Handicaps That Hinder State Police.

Major Lynn G. Adams, head of the Pennsylvania State constabulary, delivered an address before a large and representative audience in the Court House in Bellefonte on Friday evening. Major Adams was here under auspices of the Centre County Civic Committee. J. K. Johnston, president, was in charge of the meeting.

A special program was rendered. Invocation was offered by Rev. Dr. Ambrose M. Schmidt, which was followed by the singing of "America," led by Mrs. Russell Blair. Mr. Johnston made a few remarks and there was another selection in song, after which Major Adams was introduced.

He told in detail of the spirit of patriotism that should inspire every citizen to love of country and flag, obedience to all its laws and co-operation in every good work. Then he cited some examples in illustrating how the state police are hindered in their work, especially as regards enforcement of the prohibition laws.

After the address, a verse of "The Star Spangled Banner" was sung and Rev. Bingaman, of Nittany, pronounced the benediction.

Major Adams stated that the conditions in Centre County were the best, or at least as good as any county in the State. He also complimented Judge Quigley in the very highest terms and let it be plainly understood that if all the Judges in the State were as solidly back of law enforcement as Judge Quigley the situation would be made much easier.

He cited illustrations of certain cases heard by the Judge in various parts of the State and one in particular in Philadelphia where four defendants were acquitted of the charge of bribery growing out of the confiscation by Lieut. O'Boyle of the State Police of twelve truck loads of beer. An application was made for the return of $3100.00 bribe money. The Judge not only censured the jury for returning such a verdict but told the attorneys for the defendants that while technically they might be entitled to this money they would not get such an order from him.

SLOGAN CONTEST

Students of the schools in Centre county are invited to suggest a slogan for the campaign.

The slogan must be of not more than four words.

It must not include the word "Bellefonte".

It should, if possible, convey the idea of the campaign for the hospital.

Children may ask the co-operation of their teachers and parents.

Competitors may send in as many different slogans as they can suggest.

A $10 prize will be given by Judge Quigley to the person whose Slogan is adopted.

The contest will close at 4 P. M. Saturday, March 22nd.

Mail or bring your Slogan to Campaign Headquarters, Court House, Bellefonte.

You may use the word "Centre" in your Slogan as the name of the hospital is going to be changed to "Centre County Hospital".

The following is a suggested Slogan: "A Call to All."

At the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis on Tuesday the members freely discussed the hospital campaign and the part that they will take in it. The enthusiasm shown and the optimistic trend of the discussion was that the Kiwanis were in it to a finish.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARIES

Double Celebration at Potter-Hoy Camp, Near Curtin.

Two wedding anniversaries were observed in a most joyous social event at the Potter—Hoy camp, formerly the Mason's camp, near Curtin, on last Friday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Zeigler were married six years ago on the 14th and Mr. and Mrs. Guy Kline were married 7 years ago on March 15th. Both anniversaries were observed together and a number of friends of both couples were guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Zeigler have one daughter, Betty. The former is employed in the office at the Potter—Hoy hardware store and was assistant clerk to the County Commissioners before being employed by Mr. Potter about 4 years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Kline have two children, Robert and Louise. Mr. Kline is one of the valued foremen of the American Lime & Stone Co. When the Zeiglers started housekeeping, they resided in one of the two Lambert houses on South Allegheny St., neighbors with Klines, who occupied the other, and they have always been close friends.

Both couples are held in high esteem and were the recipients of best wishes from a large circle of friends.

MADE AND SOLD BOOZE GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE

Two Men from Rush Township in Special Session of Court.

EACH GOT THREE YEARS

Samuel Myers and Charles Williams, residents of Rush Township, were sentenced to serve three months in jail at a special session of Court held on Monday afternoon by Judge Henry C. Quigley. They started serving their sentences at once.

The men are neighbors and had been suspected of breaking the prohibition law. Armed with search warrants, J. S. McEwen, constable, and Daniel Brink, chief-of-police of Philipsburg, visited their homes and found stills and a quantity of "corn" booze. They arrested the men, who were subsequently placed in jail and entered pleas of guilty to manufacturing, possessing and selling intoxicating beverages. It is said the booze was sold at $2 per quart. Apparently, the men had not made much of a success, however, as neither had much money.

FARM HOUSE BURNED.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Longwell Feel Loss Keenly.

The frame-house on the Edward Longwell truck farm, in Buffalo Run valley, about three miles west of Bellefonte, was destroyed by fire on Saturday at noon. The loss is estimated at $4,000, with $1,200 insurance, and is keenly felt by Mr. and Mrs. Longwell, who are both close to the fourscore mark and depended for their living on what could be realized from selling eggs and produce.

The fire is thought to have started on the roof from a spark from the chimney. Mr. Longwell was driving home from Bellefonte when he noticed the flames. Passersby also saw the fire on the roof and an alarm was sent to Bellefonte but the local firemen did not think it good judgment to respond. It was the Logan firemen's turn for out of town calls and John J. Bower, Logan chief, was asked for a statement as to why they did not go. His statement was as follows.

"Council has, in discussion, expressed its decision that good judgment should be used in handling the pumpers and that it is poor judgment to hurriedly drive over rough roads at high speed, which is hard on the pumpers, costing as they do considerable money to purchase and operate, only to find when reaching the scene of the fire that it has a good start and that there is no adequate supply of water. In other fires in Buffalo Run valley, firemen made useless runs at considerable expense and were criticised. We had no assurance that we could help at the Longwell fire and it would have been useless to burden the borough with the expense, especially now when every effort is being made to reduce expenses. I understand that Mr. Longwell thinks the firemen should have responded because they had two cisterns of water. He doesn't understand, however, as that much water would not not last ten minutes for the pumpers and would have little effect on the fire with the start it would get in the few minutes necessary to make the run. The firemen are always ready and eager to do their duty but feel that duty demands exercise of good judgment."

Fire at Pleasant Gap.

The home of Guy Wells, at Pleasant Gap, was destroyed by fire early on Sunday morning, causing a loss estimated at $3,500, covered by insurance. The property belonged to the State, being a part of the State fish hatchery plant. Local firemen were called and responded but the flames had a good start. The fire was discovered by Mr. Wells, while he was preparing breakfast, his wife being a patient in the Bellefonte hospital. It was burning on the roof when he saw it, probably being caused by a spark from the chimney. Most of the household goods were saved.

Favorable Action on Pensions.

Special bills introduced by Congressman William I. Swoope to grant pensions to Eliza Haines and Martha R. Potts, of Howard, passed the House last week in the amount of $20 per month to each of them. Congressman Swoope is endeavoring to have them passed promptly by the Senate. He also introduced a special bill to grant an increase of pension to Mrs. Mary W. Noll, widow of John Noll, of Bellefonte, which also passed the House and is pending before the Senate.

WESTERN PIONEER TELLS INTERESTING EXPERIENCE

Frank Rikert, Who Left Illinois for California in Covered Wagon in 1864, Wouldn't Take $100 for Bottle of Tanlac.

Frank Rikert, well-known resident of North Sacramento, Cal., who came to the state from Illinois in a covered wagon in 1864, along with other hardy pioneers, recently exhibited a bottle of Tanlac, which he had just purchased, to a friend at his home and remarked: "If I thought this was the last bottle of Tanlac I would ever be able to buy, I wouldn't take one hundred dollars for it," thus proving the high valuation he places on the famous treatment.

"I believe Tanlac really saved my life when I took it after the Flu about a year ago," continued Mr. Rikert, "for the attack left me 20 pounds off in weight, and unable to turn over in my bed without assistance. I tell you, I thought my time had surely come.

"But, thanks to my wife's insistence, I kept on taking Tanlac till I was able to do all my work again, had back all my lost weight, and I've been feeling years younger ever since. I'm always telling my friends about Tanlac, and can't say too much for it."

"EVEN IN BEST OF FAMILIES"

By AGNES NORTH

(©, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"EVEN IN BEST OF FAMILIES"

THE Mitchell family was at its evening meal.

Following his custom, Mr. Mitchell related a few of the day's experiences and then turned with the same old question to his younger son:

"Well, Oscar, now did you get along today? Did you learn anything?"

"Uh-huh."

"Good boy, were you?"

And then came the surprise.

"Nope."

"No? What happened?"

"Ot-ter had a lickin'—but I didn't get it."

"Well, you see, we have sorter-er box in our room to put our rubbers in. I was kinder tired when I got in an' I thought I wouldn't take mine off. And then, just as I got up the aisle, I changed my mind and thought I would. So I leaned one hand on my desk and one on the desk across the aisle. (Here he illustrated by leaning both hands upon the table.) And then I scuffed one rubber off by the aid of my toe—you know—"

"Yes, I know," broke in Mrs. Mitchell with conviction.

Oscar maintained a strained silence for a moment. The family continued eating.

"Oh, no. Miss Gray, my home-room teacher, was at the desk, but she wasn't looking. At least, I don't think she was. I had my back to her, you see, and I don't know."

"Yes, but I don't think that's any story," remarked Sister Elsie, who was a few years older and in a regular high school, instead of a junior high; and who, being that much ahead of Oscar, felt superior and never took stock in his stories.

"Well, who said it was a story? And, besides, I ain't done yet."

"Am not," corrected his aunt.

Oscar subsided again and the story would have been lost if it had not been for older brother.

"That was an interesting beginning, Orbie. Dad and I are listening, anyway."

"Well, anyhow, the other scuffed off at the heel all right, but it just simply stuck at the toe, and so I—I—I swung it a little so's to shake it off, but it didn't budge—so I swung a little more. Well, that is, perhaps not a little more, but some more—more than I meant to. And, and, well, it—it—it flew."

"Flew!" reiterated his mother.

Neither his father nor his brother spoke, yet both had mental pictures of windows, and the latter felt in his pocket for some change; he remembered quite distinctly that glass cost money.

"What flew?" questioned his aunt.

"Why, the—the rubber," stammered Oscar, and was silent.

"Flew where?" Mr. Mitchell asked (after waiting to make sure that no one else would).

Silence.

Oscar choked. He swallowed some water and then decided to make the best of the situation he had created.

"It went up toward the ceiling over me and then it turned a circle and started toward the front of the room. It was, well, it was all muddy. Yes, you remember, I told you Miss Gray was up toward the front of the room, standing by her desk, talking to Ginger?"

No one answered his question. It was not necessary.

"Well, 'tweren't no fault of mine if she was there. I didn't tell her where to stand. But—but when that rubber started, I—I—turned round quick to see where it was goin', and there it was, goin' straight for her."

Pause.

Oscar choked again. In fact, everyone choked. For a moment Orbie's case looked black indeed.

Finally, brother relieved the situation.

"And what did she say?"

"I should say, and what did she do?" interposed Auntie.

"That was the worst of it." (Oscar was enjoying the situation now.) "She—she—well—she looked up and—and smiled, and she said, 'Well, Oscar, that was a good shot!' And she handed me back my rubber—and that was all she said about it. And I know it must have hurt, and, besides, it was all mud, and some of it stayed in her hair, but—but that was all."

The Mitchell family drew a deep breath.

"Guess mother'll have to invite her in to tea some night," brother added.

"Well, I guess not!" interposed Auntie. "She must have her idea of this family already. To bring a boy up to conduct himself so in public!"

And thus ended the evening meal.

The picturesque building has recently been purchased for these lads as a permanent campsite by the American Committee for Devastated France. Timber Used Much Faster Than Grown Forester Tells of Drain on Country's Forests.

Washington.—Land use and timber supply are the two major problems confronting the country in its use of forest lands, according to Colonel William B. Greeley, chief of the forest service, Department of Agriculture. In his annual report he states that the annual drain on the country's forests amounts to 25,000,000,000 cubic feet, while growth replaces only 6,000,000,000 cubic feet. In referring to this vast discrepancy between drain and growth and the necessity for intensive forestry practices on all forest land, the report says:

"The investigations conducted during the year by the select committee of the United States senate are one of the most helpful and stimulating steps the federal government has taken in attacking the reforestation problem as a whole, and it is disclosing beyond doubt or question that the time is at hand for enormous progress in timber growing if public agencies will give the landowner a fair chance. This should be our next step in our national forestry policy."

More timber was cut from the national forests during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1923, than ever before in a similar period, and the receipts paid into the United States treasury were greater than for any previous year, according to the report. The amount of timber cut totaled 991,982,000 board feet; the amount sold was over 2,000,000,000 feet. Sales of timber on the national forests are made only with care to cut no more timber than the growth in order to insure a perpetual supply.

Increase in Sales.

The increase in timber sales from the Alaskan forests during the fiscal year was 73 per cent over the previous year. One of the factors affecting the volume of timber business in the national forests is the continued westerly migration of forest industries from the depleted timber regions of the East, and this is reflected in sales of timber from the Western forests.

Fires within the boundaries of the national forests swept 373,214 acres during 1923, it is reported, and destroyed timber and property valued at $494,965,000, exclusive of the intangible and indirect damage to young growth, recreational uses and watershed protection. This area was nearly equal to that burned in 1921, but the damage was nearly twice as great because of more serious fires in stands of merchantable timber. Man-caused fires again were responsible for over 60 per cent of the total.

"Public opinion must be aroused to the criminal destruction of the country's forest lands, whether owned by the government or privately owned," declares Colonel Greeley. "For one thing reforestation of non-producing timber lands, upon which so much depends, cannot take place unless fire is kept out. The fire menace cannot be overemphasized."

Nearly 36,000 permits to graze live stock on ranges within the national forests were issued during the year. Altogether 6,851,690 sheep, 1,915,113 cattle, 69,640 horses, 39,889 goats and 1,888 swine, exclusive of the animals under six months which do not require permits, grazed on the forest ranges. Several changes in grazing fees and in the form of permits to be issued will be made, it is expected, with the grazing season of 1925.

New Experiment Stations.

Two new forest experiment stations were established during the year, one at Amherst, Mass., to study the forest problems of New York and the New England states, and the other at St. Paul, Minn., to cover the lake states. These stations were established in keeping with the policy of extending the research work to all important timber-producing regions.

Among the outstanding accomplishments of the Forest Products laboratory at Madison, Wis., the report states, was the formulation of universal grading rules for soft wood yard lumber and structural timbers. Standard names for yard lumber were also suggested. Experiments in pulping processes to help meet the problem of finding raw material for pulp and paper formed another major activity of the laboratory during the year, as also did the study of kiln-drying processes and of dimension stock requirements of wood-using industries.

Construction of roads and trails within national forests proceeded at a faster pace than in any previous year. Slightly over 2,000 miles of forest roads and more than 4,000 miles of trails were built, bringing the total mileage of roads up to 6,873 and of trails up to 10,675. In addition, maintenance work was conducted on 7,242 miles of roads and 29,000 miles of trails.

DESERTS SOCIETY

A member of New York city's most exclusive social circles and of one of its oldest families, Miss Janet Fish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Van Cortlandt Fish, has completely deserted society and is now devoting her life to the care of the sick and disabled poor of the east side, as superintendent of nurses at St. Mark's hospital.

Small coal gas producers to be carried on motorboats or automobiles to provide fuel instead of gasoline have been invented in England.

Public Will Name World Flight Craft

Designated After Cities Selected by Straw Vote.

Washington.—The four airplanes selected by the army air service for the round-the-world flight will bear the names of four leading American cities.

The object of the air service in designating these ships by name, is to create greater interest in the undertaking, it is stated. Just what cities will be selected for the honor has not been determined. In order to lend zest to the contest, it is the intention of air service officials to invite the newspapers of the country to aid in the work of selection, and it is hoped that the leading journals will conduct straw ballots for this purpose.

One plan put forth suggests that a city from the northeast coast, one from the north central border, one from the Pacific coast and one from the South would make an excellent combination. This would seem to indicate the choice of New York, Chicago, San Francisco or Los Angeles, and perhaps New Orleans, though Atlanta might come in for consideration as the representative city of the South.

To Push Movement.

Chambers of commerce in the leading cities of the country, regardless of the likelihood of the parent city to be selected, will be asked to get behind the movement and push it with the newspapers of their immediate areas.

The plans selected for the record-breaking flight are known as "Douglas World Cruisers." They are conventional type bi-planes having a long non-stop flying range and easy to maneuver into and out of small landing areas.

Each of these airplanes weighs without gasoline, oil or passengers, about 4,268 pounds. Fully loaded, the weight is about 8,830 pounds. Of the load of 4,570 pounds, nearly 4,000 will be fuel and oil. This amount of fuel and oil will allow a flight of approximately 2,200 miles.

The engine used is the improved Liberty, weighing less than two pounds per horsepower. With wide open throttles, it develops 420 horsepower and will carry the plane of more than two tons at a speed of about 100 miles per hour. This Liberty engine has been greatly improved over former models; air intake passages have been rearranged to prevent backfiring and danger of fire. Gasoline pumps for the carburetors are so fitted as to reduce danger from gasoline under pressure; stronger timing gears have been provided to operate the two ignition systems.

The fuselage construction is steel tubing welded and riveted in place, giving additional strength over the usual stick and wire-construction in addition to freedom from warping and loss of alignment. The wings have a span of 50 feet, are 7½ feet wide and have a total area of about 700 square feet. They are of fabric and wood. The wings can be folded back, reducing the span to 20 feet, for shipment or storage. The propeller, between six and seven feet long, about six inches in width at the hub, tapers to a fraction of an inch at the tips, and is composed of many pieces of selected wood, glued and pressed together.

Landing and Take-Off.

The planes can be quickly adapted for landing and take-off on either land or water by a change from the 36 by 8-inch wheels to pontoons. The pontoons have a reserve displacement of 85 per cent, based on the maximum weight of the plane.

A total of 600 gallons of gasoline is carried in six tanks; a 60-gallon gravity tank is in the center section of the upper wing; one of 150 gallons is behind a fire wall in the rear of the engine; one of 160 gallons is beneath the floor of the pilot's cockpit, and in the butts of both lower wings are tanks holding 62 gallons each. Engine driven gear pumps are provided to convey the fuel to the engine and a hand pump for emergency use is located in the cockpit. Fifty gallons of lubricating oil are carried in two intersectional tanks connected together under the engine.

Palm Beach Visited by Old Neptune

Father Neptune and two lovely mermaids came out of the sea at Palm Beach the other day. On closer examination he turned out to be Commodore W. E. Longfellow of Washington, director of life saving of the Red Cross and national committeeman of the Boy Scouts of America.

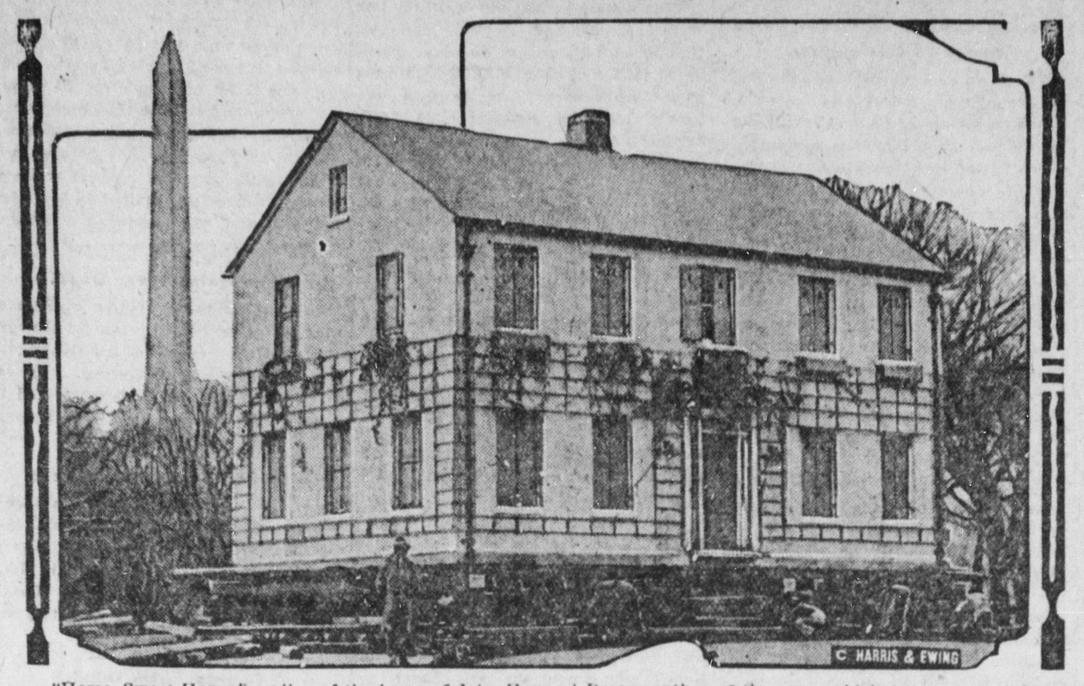
Portuguese Contest Boosts Wheat Yield

Chicago. — According to reports reaching the wheat council of the United States strenuous efforts are under way in Portugal to promote wheat growing and thereby render the country independent of imported grain and flour. Farm leaders are endeavoring to induce fellow-farmers to increase the area under cultivation and improve the quality of the grain by competitive means. Prizes are to be awarded those who produce the best wheat and show the largest increases in acreage.

Raise Mustaches to Fight Bobbed Hair

Richmond, Mo. — Bobbed-haired wives here are in for a painful experience and plan to organize to stop the threatened move of their husbands, who have declared they will raise mustaches in retaliation for their wives having their hair bobbed. A number of the fair matrons declare that it simply must not be done. Others are getting mustache cups for them in anticipation of their hirsute adornment. The articles of incorporation provide that all members who take the oath to uphold the mustache will be fined one hat for each other member if they yield to the pleas of their wives to keep their upper lip shaved cleanly.

Girl Scouts Now Inhabit "Home, Sweet Home"



"Home, Sweet Home," replica of the home of John Howard Payne, author of the song, which for many months has been a feature in the vicinity south of the treasury in Washington, has been moved to a permanent location at New York avenue and Eighteenth street, where it will serve as the headquarters of the National Girl Scouts. The photograph shows the house being moved.

Crooks Get 500 Millions Yearly

Immigrants and Other Foreigners Victims of Get-Rich-Quick Men.

Washingon.—When you consider that an estimated $500,000,000 is filched by fraudulent and hopeless schemes from the American people each year, the importance of protecting the immigrants who seek lives of usefulness on our shores from becoming dupes in weird swindles cannot be overestimated, writes Lew Wallace, Jr., director of United States government savings system.

Not only are new arrivals to this country exploited by men with wildcat schemes, but thousands of foreign-born citizens in our cities, in mines and on farms are the victims of dishonest schemers who separate them from their hard-earned money.

I have had a better opportunity, perhaps, than many other citizens to observe graphically the toll fraudulent schemes have wrested from America's foreign-born, and especially among the poorer classes of the people. As director of the government's savings system it has been my unfortunate duty to examine the distressing letters written by deluded men and women from cities and hamlets all over the United States, and I want to take this opportunity to give you instances of such frauds, as well as constructive advice on how to save your money with the utmost security.

The foreign-born man with a family has an innate longing for a home. It is his first desire, as soon as he gets settled in this country, to provide a little place for his wife and children. Knowing this, the real estate shark preys upon the man with this appeal.

Grand Larceny Law Avoided.

For instance, large tracts of land in New York's metropolitan area, within, say, a 50-mile radius of New York, have been sold as lots to foreigners. I heard of cases where lots purported to be worth $200 were sold at the ridiculously low price of $37 to $49.50. This latter price, you will note, is just half a dollar under the limit needed to prosecute under the grand larceny law.

But behold, when the immigrant and his happy little family went out to the lot and began to build a small house they usually found that the property was burdened heavily by a mortgage which was part of a blanket, and also by liens in the form of judgments against the men who sold the lots.

Other tragic cases brought to my attention revealed that immigrants had purchased lots on the installment plan, paying from $500 to $700—their life's savings—only to find that the lots were not worth $75.

In various parts of the country where the population is composed of large settlements of foreigners, many of whom have taken out citizenship papers, the schemers employ agents speaking the languages of the foreigners. Then by lurid promises of large profits, the gullible workers are persuaded by their countrymen to buy quantities of worthless stocks in oil, navigation, mine and corporation companies.

These linguistic salesmen talk the foreign workers into buying mortgages not worth the paper they are written on. They lure them on with promises of 40 per cent interest or even more on rainbow investments. And they invariably charge a high rate of interest. It is the common practice to sell these thousands of foreigners shares at from $1 to $5 apiece. Often several fat "dividends" are immediately paid—and the happy purchasers, seeing rosy visions of bettering their condition, turn over more of their wages each week to get more shares of the stock, which in the end proves worthless.

At a recent meeting of the legislative committee on exploitation of immigrants in New York, James J. Wilson, deputy assistant district attorney, declared that more than $12,000,000 alone had been obtained from immigrants by the "under water lot swindle." Mr. Wilson for the past two years has specialized in prosecuting cases of the exploitation of foreigners. Schemers sold property to persons in the foreign population, and later, on investigation, the new owners discovered they had bought residence lots that were buried under the waters of Long Island sound or mired in the marshes of New Jersey.

That is a disgrace which all loyal Americans must wipe out. How can we expect these immigrants to have any love for their adopted country if they are to be the prey of dishonest schemers? Why, in New York state alone 32 per cent of the population are aliens. We expect them to develop into good, decent, patriotic citizens, shed their blood for our country, be true to the principles of Americanism—and we allow sharpers to rob them of their savings which have been slowly hoarded after many months of arduous toil.

A Practical Remedy.

There is, right now, a practical remedy, and it behooves you, as a loyal citizen to spread the work whenever possible, not only among the foreign born, but among native Americans, who are, in only too many cases, fellow-victims of the get-rich-quick promoters.

I refer to the new issue of United States treasury savings certificates which, since December 1, 1923, have been offered to the public in denominations of $25, $100 and $1,000 at the highly attractive interest rate of 4½ per cent. Are you familiar with these remarkable securities?

"Right now I can think of no better investment than United States treasury savings certificates, which are among the most attractive securities issued by our government," declared Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, the other day. "They are backed by the credit of the United States, pay a liberal rate of interest and are issued in denominations within the reach of all."

In the same spirit, bankers and financial authorities generally, have indorsed the new certificates as ideal investments for the everyday citizen, the worker of moderate means, who has only a small amount of money to invest and who wants to make sure his money is in absolutely safe hands.

Even now, after treasury savings certificates have been offered the public since 1921, there are millions of people who have only a vague idea of what they are and where they may be obtained—although if they only knew the facts they would rush to buy them.

It has only been since December 1, however, that the certificates were offered with the attractive interest rate of 4½ per cent, and from the stream of reports coming to my department I can predict an even larger increase in the purchase of the certificates than last year, when the increase was $30,000,000 over the previous year.

For example, in the Federal Reserve bank in Philadelphia alone 47,500 certificates were bought by the public in the first three days after the certificates were placed on sale. That is just one bank and in just one city. But it gives an idea of how eagerly the ordinary citizens are buying these new government securities.

My investigations show that it is the great middle class which is buying most of the new certificates. For one thing, the government refuses to sell more than $5,000 of any one issue to one person, and this has served to keep the millionaire investor away, although I know for a fact that many rich men have bought $5,000 lots of the certificates simply to put away in their safe deposit vaults.

The reason is plain. The certificates are as good as gold, and no matter how the stock market may agitate the prices of other securities the treasury savings certificates are always worth more than was originally paid for them. Furthermore, they may be cashed at any time before maturity and the owners will obtain 3½ per cent interest, compounded semi-annually. Even millionaires are glad to have securities on hand that can be turned into ready money with little delay.

And—just as I predicted months ago—the official records show that some of the most enthusiastic buyers of the new certificates are the citizens of foreign birth. It is with a sigh of relief and gratitude that they are turning to this practical and profitable investment provided them by the country in which they have placed their implicit faith.

Foreigners Heavy Buyers.

For example, in the coal districts of Pennsylvania, in the mining towns of West Virginia, Illinois and Michigan, in the great foreign centers of our cities, the latest figures show the foreign citizens are buying more than the average. The citizens of Italian, Polish, German, Czechoslovak and Scandinavian extraction are wisely investing their surplus funds in treasury certificates.

"It is safe," they say. "Safe as the United States itself. And there is no need to worry about the certificates being lost by fire or theft, because they are registered in our names in Washington. Besides they pay good interest, better than we could get elsewhere with safety. It is just the investment we have been waiting for."

Yes! These new certificates endorsed and backed by the government are safe—as safe as the nation itself, for the whole nation pledges itself to pay back to the purchaser the original amount invested plus 4½ per cent interest, compounded semi-annually, at maturity, which is five years from the day of purchase.

Post offices throughout the country are selling the certificates in steady volume. It is now as easy to buy a certificate as it is to make a purchase in a store. And while you are entrusting your money to Uncle Sam, it is steadily working for you. So that if you give the postmaster $20 you will receive $25 at maturity; $80 will buy a $100 certificate and $800 will obtain for you a certificate that will bring $1,000 in cash in five years.

Take a young man who is about to get married. Buying a $25 certificate each month he will lay aside a $1,500 nest egg in five years. That will help considerably in the purchase of a small home.

There is no doubt that each of us should save systematically. It is an easy thing to do now that the profitable new treasury certificates are on sale at post offices, in many banks and in all Federal Reserve banks, as well as the Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

If you should want further advice on your financial problems, write either to me personally in Washington, or to the director of government savings in your Federal Reserve district.

U. S. AGENTS TAKE 3 COUNTERFEITERS AFTER LONG HUNT

New York.—With the arrest of three men on charges of counterfeiting, Joseph A. Palma, chief of the secret service force in New York, announced that the mystery of the recent circulation of bogus war savings stamps, postage stamps and ten and twenty dollar Federal Reserve notes had been explained. The prisoners are Isaac Levine, of 69 Somerset street, Newark; Lewis Wilkes, of 100 Rockaway road, Jamaica, and Philip Leiberman, alias John Davis.

According to Mr. Palma, the three men began manufacturing war savings stamps at Newark in 1919 and disposed of their product in small quantities in Salem, Mass., and Buffalo. Some of them, the agent said, also appeared in Newark about the same time. Most of the stamps were seized and a hunt, fruitless until recently, was begun.

Mr. Palma said that after a large quantity of the stamps had been printed the plant was dismantled and thrown into the river. He said the government intends dredging for the outfit in order to use it against the prisoners when they are brought to trial.

Fake Postage Stamps Appear.

After this plant had been dismantled and the agents had lost trace of the source of the war savings stamps, Lieberman and two friends, Paul Adler and Benjamin Podolsky, were arrested December 11 in connection with the appearance in the East of a quantity of two-cent postage stamps and $10 Federal Reserve notes. A plant was seized at 330 New York Avenue, Jamaica.

Palma said he believed Lieberman, Levine and Wilkes were involved in six counterfeiting cases besides the one for which they were arrested. These included, he said, an attempt to put out $20 notes, which had only a small circulation.

Leiberman confessed, Mr. Palma said, to participation in the forgery of war savings stamps.

Majority of Stamps Withdrawn.

"They didn't get very far with these," the agent asserted. "Fully 95 per cent of those manufactured in Newark were seized by secret service agents. Although the 1919 issue exceeded their production of the issue of 1918, I wish to contradict certain statements that thousands of dollars' worth of these stamps are in circulation in New York and other parts of the country. Only small quantities have been in circulation at any time, and most of these have already been withdrawn.

Farm Labor Higher in '23 Than Preceding Two Years

Washington.—Farmers were required to pay higher wages to male farm labor during 1923 than in the two preceding years, the United States Department of Agriculture reports. The average rate per month with board in 1923 was $33.18; in 1922 it was $29.17, and in 1914 the rate was $21.05. the average monthly rate without board in 1923 was $46.91; in 1922 it was $41.79, and in 1914 the rate was $29.88.

Day wages for harvest labor, with board, averaged $2.45 in 1923, as compared with $2.20 in 1922 and with $1.55 in 1914. For farm labor other than at harvest time the rate per day with board was $1.93 in 1923, as compared with $1.65 in 1922 and with $1.13 in 1914.

The peak year in wages of farm labor in recent years was 1920, the department points out. The deflation of general prices then began and farm rates continued to decline until the fall of 1922, when an upward trend developed.

Your doctor advises internal cleanliness

HE will tell you that the first results of constipation—headache, sleepless nights, biliousness, backache, etc.—warn that the body is flooded with intestinal poisons. In time, these poisons may cause the breakdown of health and lead to serious disease. In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

"Keep Clean Inside" Say Physicians.

Hence, doctors urge internal cleanliness—regular and thorough removal of food waste from the body.

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Why Physicians Favor Lubrication

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water it is harmless.

Get rid of constipation and avoid disease by adopting the habit of internal cleanliness. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

ELECTION BOARD IN JAIL

Cambria County Men Convicted for Tampering With Ballots.

Withdrawing their motion for a new trial, 5 members of the election board of the Twelfth ward, Johnstown, convicted at the December term of court of tampering with the returns in the mayoralty primary election in September, appeared in court before Judge S. L. Reed shortly after the noon recess on March 12, and received sentence. Each was given the costs, a fine of $300 and ordered to serve 30 days in the county jail. By virtue of the provision of Section 9, Article 8, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, each of the defendants shall be denied the right of suffrage absolutely for a term of 4 years, the court announced.

In imposing sentence Judge Reed said it was very unfortunate that such young men, all laboring men who earned their living by the sweat of their brow and the kind of men for whom our forefathers fought to give us the rights of a free country we now enjoy, should have been involved in the case.

New Industries Established.

A total of 513 new industries developing freight traffic estimated at more than 6,500,000 tons annually, were established on the lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad System last year, according to a report just compiled by the Company's Industdustrial Department. The growth of industries on the Pennsylvania Railroad 1923 was the greatest of any railroad in the country. The newly established enterprises are expected to load over 186,000 freight cars annually. Provision has already been made for the construction of 237 private sidings to handle the increased traffic.

STUDENTS REMEMBERED.

Packages From Mothers Make Postmen Work.

Mothers and sweethears of the average college student of today do not forget that the absent one has a "sweet tooth."

Six hundred parcel post packages addressed to Penn State students are received at the State College post office every week-day. Nine out of every ten of these will probably contain a whole or a good sized piece of cake, a dozen or two of cookies or some fried chicken, fruit, candy, or other toothsome morsel.

The delicacies that are smuggled away from the prying eyes of hungry classmates usually are tucked away in a corner of the weekly incoming laundry case. Postmaster George Glenn says that over 3000 packages, most of them special mailing cases containing supplies of clean shirts, collars, pajamas, socks, etc., go through the office every week for students. Needless to say, the parcel post deliverymen are at times the most popular beings in the town,—when they do not pass empty handed.

Occasionally a "best girl"—and many times it is mother—will send an entire box full of delicacies, the forerunner of a midnight "feed" behind locked doors with "roomie" and a few invited guests.

There are almost three times as many parcels received at the State College post office as are sent out each day, and half of the daily receipts are the laundry cases or packages of "eats" for students. The laundry cases keep going back and forth, week in and week out, and they are always much heavier for the return trip. A five ton truck is necessary to haul the daily load from Lemont over the three miles to the college town. Not overlooking the letter writing of students, Postmaster Glenn estimates that of the 600 average daily letter dispatch, over half are posted by students. They receive this many or more in return.

Route is Not Altered.

"Somebody had a pipe dream at Mahanoy City. That stuff is all bunk." Such was the report received when the aviation field here was called to find what route the fliers had taken since it was announced from Mahanoy City that atmospheric conditions in that section had caused the pilots to fear flights that way in going between Bellefonte and New York city. The report was that up until a short time ago mail planes passed over Mahanoy City but that the route had been altered because of the treacherous air pockets between Tamaqua and the Lofty mountains. Pilots, it was claimed, had said the atmospheric conditions were unique and that they would rather face a storm than fly over that section. At the Bellefonte field the men said, "Its all bunk. The route has never been changed."

Hunters Failed to Report.

Over 40,000 hunters, who took out licenses in 1923, have failed to make a report of the game killed during the season, according to Seth E. Gordon, secretary of the board of game commissioners. Under the game law reports are required within thirty days after the expiration of licenses. The licenses will expire on April 30th.

JOHN DUNLAP DEAD

Passing Away of Esteemed Citizen Shock to Community.

The death on Wednesday of John Dunlap of Bellefonte, formerly a County Commissioner and, since January 7th, Deputy Sheriff, was a shock to the community in which he had lived many years and was a highly esteemed citizen. Death was very sudden. After preparing breakfast, his daughter, Sarah, went to his room to call him. He seemed to be sleeping soundly, and she thought she would not arouse him. Incidentally, she touched his face and it was cold. This was a great shock to her, for he had retired in apparent good health and had not said anything of not feeling well. She hastily summoned a physician, who said that Mr. Dunlap had died instantly from heart failure as he slept.

The deceased was a native of Penn's valley and was 70 years old last November 9th. He was a son of Jesse C. and Susan Homan Dunlap. On October 9th, 1879, he married Miss Margaret F. Shutt and she preceded him to the grave a number of years ago, Mr. Dunlap and his children since maintaining the home, known to their many friends as one of the most hospitable and cosy places in the community, every member of the family being devoted to one another and of most genial disposition. Mr. Dunlap was of the old school, true to his friends and duty, ever of kindly but just temperament and unusually devoted to his home life, where his presence will be most keenly missed.

Surviving are three sons and five daughters: Newton, Harry E., Sarah, Margaret and Winifred, at home; Jesse and Mrs. Harry Raymond, Bellefonte; Mrs. Sabert Ramsey, Altoona; and two brothers: J. H. Dunlap, of Kingston, Ill., and William, of Warren, Ill. Funeral services will be conducted from the home on South Thomas street on Saturday afternoon by Rev. Wilson P. Ard and Rev. M. DePui Maynard. Burial will be made in the family plot in the Union cemetery.

The deceased was a member of the Gatesburg church and had served for 25 years as superintendent of the Sunday School. Previous to his retirement about ten years ago, he was postmaster and general storekeeper at Gatesburg. Surviving is one daughter, Mrs. Frances Gates, of Tyrone; one son, Isaac, at home, and one sister, Mrs. Ellen Hastings. Burial was made in Gatesburg cemetery.

OVER THE COUNTY

Those attending farm sales report the roads, off the state highways, as being in miserable condition.

Albert Henry, tenant on the Bartges farm at Penns Cave, will move this spring onto a much larger farm at Loganton.

John H. Detwiler is back to his stand on Nittany mountain and motorists are beginning to stop at the pretty scenic spot. Spring is not far away now.

John Blauser, one of the route men of the Centre Hall milk plant, fell while loading a can of milk at Frank Royer's at Potter's Mills, and broke several bones in his right hand.

George Craig and family have moved from Lewistown to the Wilkinson property at Potters Mills, which they purchased recently. Mr. Craig will continue to work in the Lewistown district.

Charles Musser, popular clerk in the Olewine hardware store in Bellefonte, had several teeth extracted one day last week and since has been having his own time of it. One of the teeth broke in pieces and part of it remained in the gum. It is also feared that it roots were so long and firmly fastened about the jawbone that the bone was splintered.

Carl Mowery, of Rebersburg, believes in loading up when he goes buggy riding, so the other day he was taking a friend and three scholars from the Rebersburg school with him. The horse stumbled and fell while it was being driven at a fast gait. So suddenly did it occur that all in the buggy were thrown to the frozen road, taking the buggy top with them. None was seriously injured, but the buggy had to be taken to the shop for repairs and the horse's knees were skinned.

Gross Allison, of Kentucky, circulated among friends in Penn's valley recently.

The sight of the left eye of James S. Reish, of Potters Mills, which was endangered when he struck the point of a broken limb as he turned about after cutting a tree one day recently, will not be affected, it was learned this week. The injury is healing nicely.

But two veterans of the Civil war remain in Millheim—Nathaniel Boob and J. H. Hoffman. The latter seems well, but his comrade is seriously ill from a heart affection. One by one the boys in blue have answered to the last Roll Call until the ranks are broken and only here and there remains a veteran of the Nation's great civil struggle.

I. A. Sweetwood, of Centre Hall, employed by the state highway department on outside highway work, will move from there to Glenside, Montgomery County, where he will continue road building under state supervision, the road from the Philadelphia city limits through Glenside to be his first. His sons, James and William, will remain in the highway office in Bellefonte.

Samuel C. Watts, who died as he stepped into a dentist's chair in Curwensville, was a brother to Dean E. L. Watts, of the Pennsylvania State College, and was well-known to a number of our readers. He was a farmer in Clearfield County and had been in ill health for some time. His physician recommended that a number of teeth be drawn. As he stepped into the chair at the dentist's office, on this mission, he collapsed and quickly passed away.

—and I'll Be Laid Up Several Weeks Longer

WHY, a brick fell from the third floor of a new building and connected with my head. In a hospital for a long time with a cracked skull, fever, delirious, and heaven knows what all.

But every month, regular as clockwork, along came a check for $200 from the ÆTNA. You see, my ÆTNA ACCIDENT POLICY calls for $50 weekly while totally disabled, $25 a week while partly out of commission, and also surgeon's fees or hospital bills. Makes it hard for me, eh? Man, I'm an optimist of the purest ray serene.

What did the policy cost? If I told you how little, you'd say I'm still raving. Come up tonight and I'll tell you. So long!

CREDIT

The business of the world is done on credit.

Credit is based on faith—on the belief that promises will be kept.

Hence the most important thing a business man can have is Character.

The first question asked about him is,—what is his reputation for honesty, for reliability.

The lack of these qualities is not long concealed.

The AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

ADDITIONAL HONORS FOR BLIND VETERAN

Frank Schoble, blinded World war veteran, and one of the nation's best examples of how a disabled man may become rehabilitated, has won additional honors. Schoble's home is at Wynecote, Pa., but he has been attending the University of Pennsylvania since 1921. There he won a membership in Phi Beta Kappa, the highest scholastic honor that a student may receive.

Schoble was blinded five days before the armistice as he led his men near Nantillois in the Argonne sector. Returning, he resolved to re-enter the school that he had left thirteen years before to enter business life, only to face many handicaps.

His first obstacle was credit for his previous work. Scholastic requirements had so increased that though he was in his junior year when he had left the school, he was given credit but for work covering a year and a half.

Then another handicap presented itself. He had not yet learned to read and write by the Braille system, and was forced to have this knowledge to continue his studies. He was not daunted, however, and his applications have just won him the most coveted honor of the institution.

Schoble is an active member of the American Legion, and has spoken before many Pennsylvania posts of the Legion. Without any bitterness against the fate which shut him off from sight, he said to his comrades:

"I see line upon line of khaki-clad men, my comrades in the war, going forward in that drive that forced the enemy from his position, and that within a few short weeks had expelled him from the Argonne.

"That sight to my mind represents the spirit of the American soldiers, and of the Legion itself. You are going forward to your objective.

"I feel I have an advantage over all you men, with that final picture in my mind. You men here are to me not an assemblage of civilians, but of soldiers, in spirit wearing that uniform and going forward. You are going to carry on until the whole nation of 10,000,000 is in line.

"No real American is going to take pride in what others do for him; he is not going to be proud of what he has done in the past. He is going to take up the responsibilities of doing more and better things himself."

Graves Endowment Fund Now in Sight of Goal

A generous contribution to the American Legion graves endowment fund, which assures decoration in perpetuity for the resting place of every World war hero on foreign soil, has been received from Mrs. Carrie Yockey of Los Angeles by National Treasurer Robert H. Tyndall of the Legion.

Mrs. Yockey's contribution of $500 brings the fund to more than $158,000, in sight of the goal of $200,000 set as the Legion's aim to accomplish perpetual remembrance of every grave on foreign soil. The fun is administered by a committee made up of all past national commanders of the American Legion.

Mrs. Yockey is the widow of a Civil war veteran and a "gold star" mother of the World war. In acknowledgment of the contribution Mr. Tyndall wrote:

"The American Legion is proud of its 'gold star' mothers. That was one incentive back of our effort to create a perpetual graves decoration fund, so that through their remaining years, the dear little mothers privileged to display the gold star might ever be content in the knowledge that the grave of their beloved one bore always concrete evidence of our pride and love and theirs."

Landis Reserves Room for Next Convention

Maj. Reed Landis, chairman of the American Legion national committee on areonautics, was the first to reserve rooms in the New Nicollet hotel in Minneapolis, to be occupied during the American Legion convention in St. Paul September 15 to 19. The New Nicollet has not yet been opened and is under construction by a firm of Illinois engineers and contractors, some of whom are Legion men.

Major Landis announced that he was seeking rooms for the convention and the architect promised the room reservations made for the Landis party on the blue prints would be validated as soon as the hotel was thrown open to the public.

Many Legionnaires who will visit the convention will stay in Minneapolis hotels in order that St. Paul may accommodate the big throng of veterans expected to gather for the reunion.

Time Limit Soon Expires

American Legion officials are notifying members of the organization who seek to file claims for disability to get these into the veterans' bureau immediately. A time limit of five years has been set and this period will expire in most veterans' cases in a short time.

Must Continue Fight

SAMUEL ARONOWITZ of Albany, N. Y., first vice commander of the American Legion of that state, said during the course of an address made in Troy:

"The American Legion will justify its existence this year. We must continue our fight for the disabled until every veteran incapacitated as a result of service is receiving adequate compensation, proper hospitalization and opportunity to become rehabilitated and take his place as a self-respecting citizen, adding his share to the economic prosperity of our country. We must continue our work in Americanization with the hope that the time may soon come when there will be but one language spoken in our country, and that the English language; when there will be but one set of ideals upon which our country was founded and which are so clearly stated in the Declaration of Independence; when there will be one allegiance, and that an undivided allegiance to the United States."

OLDEST ENLISTED MAN IN WORLD WAR

There are only a few honorary members of the American Legion. Marshal Ferdinand Foch, General Gouraud and General Pershing are three of them. Here is another. Frank Jones, a janitor at the state capitol in Des Moines, Ia., was the oldest enlisted man in the army during the World war. He served in Company K of the One Hundred and Sixty-eighth infantry of the Rainbow division. And he danced with Elsie Janis when she entertained the company just outside of Chateau-Thierry.

Jones is better known to the veterans as "Kokomo." He served in the Frank Jones.

Philippines and also on the Mexican border with a National Guard unit. He was a pal of the late Jack London and he once cooked for the California literary light.

When "Kokomo" got back to his home town of Corning, Ia., the citizens set him up in business with a restaurant and cigar stand. But the role of town hero didn't appeal to the old veteran, so he visited his former battalion commander, who is now state auditor of Iowa, and asked for a job. They needed a man to polish the brass railings in the capitol building and "Kokomo" is happy on the job.

Judge Day Again Wins Favor With Legion Men

Judge L. B. Day of Omaha, Neb., who is already well known to members of the American Legion for his aid to aliens who served in the United States military honorably, in securing citizenship, has deepened this appreciation from Legionnaires by another act.

Frank Kubes, an alien, presented himself in court for naturalization and testified that he had not claimed exemption from military service with the United States because of allegiance to another country.

This did not satisfy naturalization examiners, who wrote to Washington for particulars. When Kubes' record came back it was found that he had owed allegiance to another country, and this was reported to Judge Day, who immediately recalled the naturalization papers.

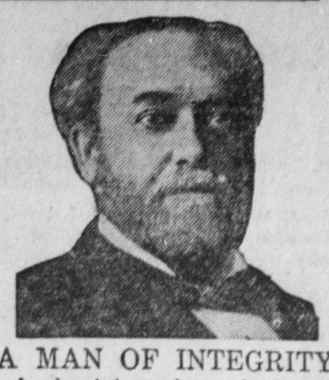
The jurist told the man that a person who thus evaded service to a nation which he hoped to call his own was unfit for citizenship, and his attitude was received with approbation by Legionnaires of Omaha.

He Raised Flag Over School After Apology

A school director in Pope county, Ariz., recently changed his mind about hoisting an American flag over the district school, in compliance with a state law. The American Legion asked and secured passage of a statute at the last session of the legislature, providing that during school sessions the American flag should be flown over the building.

The director refused to comply with the law and wrote a rather arrogant letter to the county superintendent of schools. This official passed the letter and facts concerning the case on to the prosecuting attorney, who called the director before him for an apology.

This was forthcoming, though the director did not explain his reason for refusing to raise the flag at first, giving as his defense that he had been a "loyal citizen during war time." He ordered the flag raised over the school after his apology.



A MAN OF INTEGRITY

A physician who reaches out to benefit humanity leaves a record behind him that is worth while. Such a man was Dr. R. V. Pierce, founder of the Invalids Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y. He was an eminent physician, a leading and honored citizen, known for his honesty and executive ability. His study along medical lines, and his knowledge of the remedial qualities of herbs and plants led to the discovery of his wonderful herbal remedy, Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the woman's tonic which has had the greatest number of supporters for the past fifty years. It is just the herbal tonic required if a woman is borne down by pain and sufferings at regular or irregular intervals, by nervousness or dizzy spells, headache or backache. Favorite Prescription can now be had in tablet form as well as liquid at most drug stores.

JANITOR UNABLE TO KEEP $100 BRIDE

Man Brings Girl From Austria, but She Won't Stay.

Chicago.—Richard Rilkes Dodson, fifty-nine years old, a janitor of Beloit, Wis., who says he spent $100 to bring Stephanie Barrish from Austria, lost her by a decision of Judge William L. Morgan in the court of domestic relations. The girl, twenty-two, refused even to kiss him, he said, despite their marriage in New York when she arrived.

She said a photograph Dodson sent, in their correspondence courtship, must have been taken 15 years ago, while Dodson insisted it had been taken within the last eight months.

"'No good man,' she insisted in broken English, when the judge consulted her. She was turned over to Ernst Scobel, Austrian consul.

Remove Statues From Parks to Foil Thieves

Berlin.—Stealing of metal articles of every description became so prevalent in Berlin that officials were fearful that all the bronze statues in the parks would be taken, consequently they were removed to places of safety. This form of robbery began last New Year's day, when one of a group of boxers was sawed off. The metal then was cut into small pieces and sold to junk dealers.

The theft was traced to two men, who, it was learned, were assisted by their wives and children. The scheme proved so profitable that their relatives and friends engaged in the operations. Metal articles have been stolen from churches, cemeteries and railroad trains and in one instance the copper roof of a church was carried away.

The owners of new houses are having the copper waste water pipes concealed in the walls of the first floor in order to keep them out of reach of the metal thieves. Twenty suspects are under arrest.

Eighty-Six Admirals for Seven Battleships

Paris.—A parliamentary report shows that the French navy possesses seven first-class battleships, while the number of admirals and rear admirals is given as 86.

The Vielle-France says:

"We have poked much fun at the armies of South American countries where every enlisted man is at least a colonel and the rest are generals. The South Americans have here a fine opportunity to return the compliment. It is regrettable that Great Britain, Japan and the United States—while engaged at Washington in fixing the maximum of ships and naval material that France may be permitted to possess, did not at the same time place some restrictions upon the numbers of our admirals."

Father Who Cuts Off His Baby's Hands Gets Life

Manchester, Eng.—Charged with cutting off both hands of his stepdaughter, a child only four years old, John Stoerth appeared before Justice Branson and was sentenced to spend the rest of his life in prison.

The story of the crime was described by the judge as the most horrible he ever heard. During the hearing two women jurors fainted, and there were tears in the judge's eyes.

Residents of Accrington, where the child lives, have subscribed $30,000 to provide for her future.

Sentences of life imprisonment are rarely imposed on prisoners in England, except in cases where the sentence of death has been commuted.

New Rochelle Has First Holdup in Many Years

New Rochelle, N. Y.—Immediately after the first holdup New Rochelle has had in fifteen years, committed in the restaurant of Daniel Webster, 54 Brook street, the chief of police established a dead line to ward off a crime wave.

The advent of the lone bandit who relieved Webster and two customers of more than $500 in jewelry was caused, in the view of public officials, by the Butlerizing of White Plains by Public Safety Commissioner Underhill. Crooks banished from that city are flocking to New Rochelle, it is said. The bandit wore a handkerchief as a mask and brandished an automatic.

Man Cut by Ax, Kicked by Horse and Burned

Port Allegany, Pa.—While cutting wood, Raymond Smith suffered a gash on the head when his ax slipped. The wound was bandaged, and he went into the barn, where a horse kicked him and broke his collarbone. Smith lighted a cigar, and a hot ash set fire to the bandage. In the struggle to extinguish the fire the broken collarbone was knocked out of place and his face was burned. Now Smith is in a hospital.

It keeps me in perfect health and I am on my feet getting meals and doing all my housework until an hour before the baby is born. A friend told me to take it and I have used ten bottles since I heard about it. I recommend the Vegetable Compound whenever I can. Just yesterday a friend was telling me how miserable she felt, and I said, 'If you start taking Lydia E. Pinkham's you will feel fine.' Now she is taking it."—Mrs. P. J. Oswald, Jr., 406 W. Ogden St., Girardville, Pa.

Mrs. Nicola Paluzzi Says

Mishawaka, Indiana.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness before my babies were born. I was weak and tired out all the time and it helped me. Our Continuous Obligation

Last year we put in 158,000 new telephones in Pennsylvania. This year we will put in 168,000. During the five years beginning January 1, 1924, the total will be 925,000.

These are gross figures. Our net gain will be about half that number.

Here is an interesting fact: During the coming five years we will actually put in a hundred thousand more new telephones in Pennsylvania than there are in service in the State today.

Every telephone line requires a pair of wires all the way to the central office. That's why we are adding more than half a million miles of new wire each year to our plant in this State.

Every telephone line means central office equipment and building space. That's why we are adding a million and a quarter dollars' worth of telephone apparatus every month inside our buildings.

And that, too, is why it is necessary to enlarge our buildings and to build so many new ones.

All this in a tremendous hurry—why?

Because it's our job to meet the demands for service—not at our convenience, but at the time when the telephones are asked for.

And, too, every added telephone gives your telephone more power.
